EX LIBRIS

THIS volume, published by "Sights and Insights, Inc.," under the direction of the Seniors of Salem College at Winston-Salem, North Carolina, is a Louis XIV book. Each year the Staff of "Sights and Insights" selects an original art motif, the selection involving extensive study and research in order that every possible detail of artistic and editorial work can correlate with the original motif.

The cover of this volume is an authentic copy of a book possessed by Francoise Marie de Bourbon (Mademoiselle de Blois), daughter of Louis XIV; the paper upon which the book is printed has been aged to produce the effect of antiquity; the paragraph devoted to each Senior is written in horoscope style, a form of fortune telling fashionable during the reign of the resplendent "Sun King." The classes are called the "Blues," "Yellows," "Greens," and "Reds," for the Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen, respectively. In 1685, Madame de Maintenon established a school at Saint Cyre for the education of girls and the classes were denoted in this manner. The costumes worn by the Seniors, and the students in the "Hall of Mirrors" were obtained from New York and are copies of those worn at the Court of Louis XIV.

The Staff of "Sights and Insights" is glad to take this opportunity to express its indebtedness to Mr. William A. Daniel, of the Benson Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.; Mr. Joseph R. Crandall, of the Capitol Engraving Company, Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Edna Lindsey, Mr. William Pfohl, Mr. John W. Hester, and the Huntley Hill and Stockton Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; and Mr. S. C. Clark, and the Tomlinson Chair Company of High Point, N. C.; and others, for their valued assistance rendered in the preparation of the Louis XIV book.

To those whose undying love
and tireless devotion have comforted us in sorrow, cheered us in disappointment, inspired us in happiness, and made life, in itself, beautiful for us

TO OUR MOTHERS

The spirit of this dedication is embodied in the portrait, "Rembrandt's mother," Rembrandt being contemporary with Louis XIV.

FOREWORD

Beautiful scenes, cherished traditions, dear friends, happy memories — these are the things you should treasure, and these are the things we have tried to preserve for you in the following pages.

HISTORY OF SALEM COLLEGE

THEY had come to the new land with quiet faces and determined minds, carrying in their breasts the desire for peace and spiritual growth. They were the settlers of Wachovia."

In 1766, a group of Moravians founded a community which was later to be known as Salem. These brave settlers led a life of incessant toil and vigilance, but they began with a spirit and faith which were indomitable, and they met and overcame all difficulties.

The most unusual feature of this community was that an education for girls was considered necessary. A few years after the settlement was made, three small girls gathered daily to be taught reading, writing, music, sewing, and knitting by a member of the Sisters' Choir. As the students grew older their studies became more advanced. This was the foundation of education for girls at Salem.

When, after the Revolution, it was known that Salem had a school for girls, there were many requests for the school to be opened to students from other places, and at the beginning of the nineteenth century, a school for girls was definitely established. South Hall was erected, and a few years later the first boarding pupils arrived at Salem Female Academy.

The years witnessed a steady growth of the school. During the time of and preceding the War between the States, when on account of divided opinion or lack of money many institutions were closed, the doors of Salem remained open.

The period following the War between the States was perhaps the most difficult, for there were few pupils and meager funds; but, by means of sacrifice on the part of teachers, trustees, and scholars, the school continued, and in 1867 all efforts were rewarded in the granting of a charter by the North Carolina Legislature.

Salem was incorporated into a college in the decade after the war, and since that time its progress has been unimpeded. Today it is in Class A of the colleges of the United States; it has an endowment, the value of which approaches the million dollar mark; and the student body and faculty number three hundred and twenty.

Mother of learning throughout the great Southland
Salem has stood for a century or more;
Time has but crowned her with glory and honor,
Blessed her with blessings more rich than of yore.

Dear to the hearts of her children unnumbered,
Scattered abroad through the South's sunny lands,
Dear to all those who have lived in her shadow,
Steadfast, serene, and unchanging she stands.

Long through the years may she tower unshaken,
Mellowed and warmed in tradition's soft glow,
Welcoming ever the light of true progress,
Rich in her past, yet more rich may she grow.

Strong in the strength of our loyal devotion,
Resting secure on affection untold,
Cherished forever, her glory unfading,
Salem shall live in the new and the old.

History of Class of '28

The royal court is assembled to pass the hours with pageant, masque and revelry. Noble uniforms, brilliant tapestries, and gorgeous pennants emblazoned with the royal arms combine in making a scene of exotic sumptuousness. Eager expectation marks the faces of the royal gathering, for whisperings of an unusual design have reached the royal ears. A pageant worthy of a king is about to be presented.

"Make way, make way," cries a herald, resplendent in crimson and white. "Make way for his Majesty's players, the Class of '28. List ye to the legend which is now to be enacted."

Act I

"The Class of '28, disguised as Freshmen, enter upon the scene on a fair September day. Valiantly they struggle with stern Studies, grim Homesickness, irksome Probation, and other enemies of frightful mien. The deadly Dragon, Examinations is twice confronted with his allies, Dread, Toil and Despair. The laurels of Sophomorehood at last crown the victor's head.

SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS AND

Act II

"The masques of worldly wisdom and knowledge now disguise the valiant Class of '28. Other foes are met and overcome. Valorously they enter the field on Thanksgiving Day and bear away the coveted Welfare cup. Days pass in rapid course; the second act draws to an end amid new triumphs.

Act III

"Removal of the masques of Sophomorehood reveals the marks of sober responsibility and wise experience. Again the prize is nobly contended and proudly won on the field of basketball. A strange and marvellous Circus crowns effort and ingenuity with a handsome reward of silver. A sumptuous banquet, attended with revelry and songs, takes place.

Act IV

"The costume of Seniorhood is received at the impressive Hatburning ceremony, a beauteous pageant skillfully presented. Amid the soft glow of tapers, the Class of '28 carries forth the ancient tradition of Yuletide Vespers. Another lavish banquet graces the stage. The act closes with the noble spectacle of Graduation, climax and culmination of the play. The coveted diploma, award of courage and of valiant determination, is bestowed upon the distinguished Class of '28.

"Make way, make way!"

Prophecy of the Class of '28

A PLAY IN ONE ACT

Dramatis Personae: The Class of '28.

Scene: The exotic salon of the famous Mary Ardrey Stough, popular hostess in Greenwich Village.

Time: A night in November, 1938.

Setting: The room is decorated in Oriental fashion, and a low stage curtain with black velvet is seen at the far end of the room. There is a piano not far from the stage. A Bohemian party is in progress. Mary Ardrey goes over to Tish Currie, who is conversing with a Spanish nobleman. Tish and Mary Ardrey walk away together after a moment.

ACT I.

Tish: I do enjoy talking to Alphonso del Rio; it reminds me of the days when I used to chat with Dr. Floyd.

Mary Ardrey: Speaking of Salem; did you hear Elizabeth Sifferd's Symphony Orchestra at the Metropolitan?

Tish: No, I have not heard her this winter. I heard that Sara Bell, who plays the piano in it, is thinking of leaving them and accepting a contract with Flo Ziegfeld. Sarah Kincaid is trying to get her place.

Mary Ardrey: Did you decide to give up your position as Professor of Spanish at Columbia to go into George White's Scandals?

Tish: Not just yet. Is it true that Peggy Brookes has her new studio near here?

Mary Ardrey: Yes, and it is lovely. You know her last art exhibit brought so much money that she is celebrating by asking He'en Bagby, Cordelia Shaner, and Annie Graham Caldwell to come up for a house party. I hear that each is the head of some department at Salem. Would you have ever thought when we graduated in '28 that Helen Bagby would eventually have become the Dean of Women? She is splendid and all the girls like her.

Tish: I hear that Cordelia Shaner makes an excellent Head of the History Department. She took Dr. Ancombe's place when he resigned to organize his famous Ancombe Research Society. Shaner certainly has an interesting work, and has the department well organized. Recently a trip to Flanders was made for the benefit of the class studying about the World War.

Mary Ardrey: Then the class in American History went to Guilford too, I think. Very interesting work she is doing.

Tish: Annie Graham Caldwell is a very good Physical Ed. teacher. They still have the same sports that they used to have when we were in college. They have, however, added a few. Ice skating has been added to the Fall sports.

Mary Ardrey: Oh, that is why the Senior Class is trying to make money to buy a refrigerating plant. When we were Seniors, we were trying to cover the Swimming Pool and now they are trying to cover the Skating Rink, with ice.

Tish: Annie Graham has added Skipping the Rope to the Spring sports. I suppose that before long Trapezing will be included.

Mary Ardrey: You really should see the new Gym costume or uniform that Annie Graham has introduced. It consists of a track suit, the vest of which is white, and the very brief pants striped in class colors!

Tish: Is that Katherine Riggan and Charlotte Sells over by the piano with Martha Dortch and Catherine Edgerton?

Mary Ardrey: Yes, let's go over there and watch Charlotte black-bottom.

(They move toward the piano)

Katherine: Hello Tish! (She extends a gold cigarette case.) Do have a Lucky Strike.

Tish: K. J., you really do smoke too much. Aren't you afraid to when you have to start singing in Grand Opera soon? You are getting careless with your throat!

Katherine: I smoke only Lucky Strikes; they are safe for my throat.

Charlotte (to Martha): When did you and Catherine get back from Paris?

Martha: Yesterday. We ran over for the week-end in Catherine's plane. One simply has to have a little rest from teaching Home Economics at L'Universite de Paris.

Catherine: We do run around a lot. Two weeks ago, while we were waiting trains in London, we saw Rebecca Petway on her way to Egypt on a Historical Research Expedition. She was in a great hurry in order to get ahead of her rivals, Katherine and Leonora Taylor, in obtaining recognition by the famous Ancombe Historical Research Society.

Charlotte: Oh, have you heard about the fashionable wedding of Virginia Cooper that took place last week? She married a prominent surgeon in Atlanta.

Mary Ardrey: Wasn't the Presidential election exciting? Especially since we knew two of the candidates in school! Gret Schwarze defeated Sarah Turlington for the Presidency. La Verne Waters was campaign manager for Sarah. No, I don't remember who Gret's manager was.

Tish: It was Gladys English. The papers said that she talked a million voters into a frenzy, and then in despair they voted for President Schwarze.

Charlotte: I never have been so surprised as when Velma Harrison decided to accept a position to model for Hole Proof Hosiery advertisements.

Katherine: And I heard that Peggy Holbrook had passed the California State Doctors Examination. She is going to practice in San Francisco. Ilah Albert is practicing law in North Carolina.

Tish: Guess who I saw on Keith's circuit last week. None other than Pearl Martin! She is singing negro songs and Sue Luckenbach accompanies her on the banjo.

Charlotte: Esther Gatling is playing at Keith's too. She and Agnes Thorne and Mary Kirk Jerome do a wonderful tight-rope performance.

Mary Ardrey: I am expecting Virginia Welch any minute. She said she would be late because she had to broadcast, but as soon as her jazz orchestra, the Saxophone Syncopaters, finish, they are coming. When they play for dances, Mary Duncan McAnally is their professional entertainer.

(Enter Virginia Welch and the Orchestra with a whoop.)

Virginia: Hello! Are we late?

Mary Ardrey: Not at all. Just in time for the feature entertainment. (Claps her hands for silence and addresses her guests.) I have been lucky tonight in securing the famous Pennithawn Dancers, Peggy Parker and her Dancing Furies. The piano accompaniment will be played by the celebrated artist, Dot Frazier, who began her career in Salem College as trick pianist for the Junior Stunt Night.

(The lights go out and all eyes turn toward the stage. The curtains part and the dancers spring up into a scarf dance.)

Tish: I didn't know that Sarah and Elizabeth Dowling were among the Pennithawn Dancers!

Mary Ardrey: They only signed a contract with them recently, you know. Elizabeth got her M.A. degree and a few others, and was then offered a very prominent position in the Science Department of the University of Chicago. She stayed there a while and then decided that she was being worn out by that sort of work and needed a decided change. I think it was a pity that Sarah Dowling and her husband couldn't agree about her dancing career. I really can't blame her for divorcing him when he refused to allow her to appear in public performances. Imagine it!

Tish: Oh, I forgot to tell you I read in the New York Times that Ruth Edwards is considered one of America's foremost Astronomers.

Mary Ardrey: Genevieve Mark's costume is certainly shockingly brief, and doesn't Doris Walston dance well!

Tish: Elizabeth Wilson and Lucille McGowan have always been with this company haven't they?

Mary Ardrey: No, Lih was with Ziegfeld for quite a while, but Peggy offered her such an enormous salary that she left the Follies.

Tish: Look at Ruth Helmick and Francis Haynes toe-dancing on the right.

Mary Ardrey: I think that Lib Ramsaur and Eliza Hill Grimes were Pennithawn Dancers.

Tish: Yes. How do you like Dot Frazier's hair fixed that way—in a Psyche knot with the hair back of the ears? She is letting it get entirely too long. It is below her waist.

(The dance ends amid tremendous applause. The dancers leave, followed by their leader, Peggy Parker, who tosses kisses to her admirers as she pirouettes off the stage in a delightful swirl of pink tulle.)

CURTAIN.

Last Will and Testament of the Class of '28

State: NORTH CAROLINA

County: FORSYTHE

City: WINSTON-SALEM

SECTION 1

We, the class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Eight of Salem College, being possessed of sound minds, do hereby publish, make known, and declare to all whom it may concern, that this is our Last Will and Testament.

SECTION 2

To the Classes

To the Juniors, we leave our privileges and the sublime prerogative of being a model class and an example to under-classmen.

To our little Sisters, the Sophomores, we leave all our wisdom teeth, that they may attain the wisdom that has been ours. We also leave them the deep love that they have inspired in our hearts for them.

To the Freshmen, we leave our heart-felt wishes that they may improve.

To the Class of 1932, we leave our beloved colors, the red and white, with the sincere hope that they may keep them where we have always striven to place them.

SECTION 3

To the Students

Realizing that we have a superabundance of talent and ability, we do will to worthy students the following personal belongings:

Dida Dowling, as Editor-in-Chief of "Sights and Insights," wills her days and nights of toil and agony to anyone who may be unfortunate enough to get her job.

Martha Dortch wills her volubility of speech to the next Business Manager of "Sights and Insights" with the hope that it will be of use to her in inveigling Winston-Salem merchants into buying ads.

Katherine Riggan leaves the honored position as President of the On-Campus Student Self-Government Association with the purple robe and any other duties and privileges that pertain thereto, to the next president.

Letitia Currie leaves her excess avoirdupois to Estie Lee Clore and her beautiful soprano voice to Lillyan Newell.

Sara Bell and Charlotte Sells will their four years of rooming together to any other two people who may be strong enough to stand the pressure.

Genevieve Marks leaves her rowdy manner and shrill voice to Dot Ingram and Louise Bateman with the hope that they may hereafter be heard.

The Greek Class wills its profound knowledge of the Iliad and its thorough understanding of Greek verbs to the next class (in case there is one).

Dot Frazier and Mary Ardrey Stough will their Damon and Pythias friendship to Anne Hairston and Dot Ragan.

Margaret Schwarze wills her ability to make A's in every subject to Belle Graves and her talent for producing poetry by the yard to Margaret Hauser.

The Practice House Girls will to those who take their places, the happy days in the Practice House and their skillful handling of the pots and pans.

Sara Bell bequeaths her canary to Catherine Miller to add to her menagerie and to console her for the loss of her room mate.

Katherine and Leonora Taylor leave their position as Dr. Anscombe's prompters to anyone who may be able to fill it.

Mary Duncan McAnally wills her ability to make announcements to Anne Hairston.

Elizabeth Wilson, Frances Haynes and La Verne Waters, being the only members of the class able to do so, will their numerous dates to any Junior who may be able to secure them.

To Mr. Higgins, our class teacher, we leave our best wishes for his success and happiness.

To Dr. Rondthaler we leave our abundant supply of co-operation and the deep love that he has inspired in our hearts.

To Miss Stipe and Mrs. Rondthaler we leave our sincere affection and appreciation of all they have done for us.

To our Alma Mater we leave our undying love and devotion and our sincere wishes that her future may be as glorious as her past has been.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this thirtieth day of November, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven.

CHARLOTTE SELLS, Testator.

Signed, sealed, published and declared by Charlotte Sells, the testator, for the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Eight, as their last will and testament in the presence of us, who, at her request, and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses.

Tune: "Highways are Happy Ways"

Juniors, such happy days,
 When they march to victory;
 Juniors are ever true
 To the dear old Black and Red;
 Steadfast and loyal
 To Salem College are we,

Junior Class History

TWO solemn, wise, old owls were perched on one of the highest branches of a large tree near the basketball court, casually watching an exciting game.

"That lusty cheer was for the wearers of the Red and Black," observed one of the wise birds.

"Who are they?" demanded the other.

Why, they are Juniors—everybody knows them. Just watch those on the side-lines—they are showing more pep than anybody. What class team could be more sportsmanlike, or show a better fighting spirit?"

"Who is the girl throwing the basketball?"

"She is Lillyan Newell, who was the class president in their Freshman year. That was one of the best Freshman classes Salem has ever had. From the very first, they gave promise of being outstanding in all activities."

"Who is the plucky guard who keeps the ball away from her opponent so well?"

"That is Margaret Hauser, who very successfully led the class through their Sophomore year. That year the class again proved its school spirit by entering wholeheartedly into all college events. Even though they were defeated in basketball, they won the stunt contest and tied the Juniors in the championship hockey game."

"Now that they are Juniors, what are they doing?"

"They have come back this year with even more enthusiasm than ever, and with Mary Miller Falkener as their president, they are planning many things. The most important event is, of course, the Junior-Senior reception, and already they are making preparations for it. The man you see acting as time-keeper is Mr. Roy J. Campbell, the Class teacher, who has done so much to help the Juniors. The game must be over, for they have stopped playing. I guess those cheers are for the champions."

The basketball court was soon deserted by the teams and spectators, and the two old owls were left alone to their meditations.

I

Sing a song of Sophomores and sing it loud and long,
White and purple colors—a purpose clear and strong,
Frolicking and working, sincerity and worth,
Oh! sing a song of Sophomores, of merriment and mirth.

CHORUS

Get in step, step, step with the Sophomores,
Get your pep, pep, pep, from the Sophomores,
Win a rep, rep, rep, like the Sophomores,
Get in step!

II

Sing a song of Sophomores, oh how fine a class!
A song of love and loyalty that we could not surpass—
Sing a song of Sophomores and Salem Spirit fine,

History of Sophomore Class

ISTORY," says H. G. Wells, "is bunk." Wells had never met the Class of 1930. For his benefit, we relate the following:

Sophomores are superlative. They do everything. During our Freshman year we went out for all sports. Except at the Freshman-Junior Valentine Party, we won no first places. However, our Basketball team came out second in the finals. Under the direction of our splendid class teacher, Miss Pfohl; our president, Virginia Martin; and the other capable class officers, we entertained and were entertained lavishly. The hay-ride, and picnic at Yadkin River which we gave for our Sister-Class was especially enjoyable.

We came back to Salem as Sophomores feeling very superior. We held Sophomore Court and put the Freshmen in their places. We later participated in Hat Burning, and gave a party for the Seniors and one for the Freshmen. Our class president this year is Lucille Hassell who is assisted by her efficient co-workers, Margaret Ross Walker, vice-president; Eleanor Willingham, secretary; and Frances Porter, treasurer.

Freshman Class History

"GRANDMOTHER, please tell me a story," begged Mary Louise, one Winter's evening. "Tell me about the time you went to College."

"Well, Child, run upstairs and on the lowest shelf in my bookcase you will see four rather large books. Bring me the one nearest the door."

Mary Louise returned with the 1928 "Sights and Insights" of Salem College. She opened the book to the page with the pictures of the class of '31 and listened to her grandmother.

"It is a long, long time ago, but I remember clearly all the fears and hopes which moved my heart as I drove up in a taxicab before the doors of the Alice Clewell Building at Salem. There were many other Freshmen with me, just as excited as I. The upper-classmen had planned for us a week in which we were to be the guests. The Sophomores initiated us by making us wear green ribbons around our necks, a card with our names, and by forbidding all cosmetics. We could only enter the side doors of the buildings and we had to show our deference to our elders by addressing them as "Miss."

"However, these few restrictions were not difficult in comparison with the joys given us. The Y. W. C. A. gave us a party on the lawn; the Juniors, our big sisters, entertained us with a Tea; we were a part of a most beautiful lantern parade——"

"That's what you call Salem Spirit, isn't it, Grandmother?" interrupted Mary Louise.

"Yes, dearie. The Student Council thought it necessary to put us on probation and our worst fears came true. We were very had little Freshmen, who gave the Council much trouble in chaperoning and teaching us. Even the Christmas holidays did not see us considered worthy to take care of ourselves. However, after putting our New Year's resolutions into effect for a week, we were invited to a most delightful party at which we were told that probation was lifted!

"You hadn't caught the Salem Spirit, had you?"

"I am afraid not in this respect, Mary Louise. But we did show Salem that we had a lot of pep, that we could support our class and we gave her hopes that perhaps we might be worthwhile. Our class won the first athletic contest of the year when our girls made the most points in the swimming meet. After faithful practice, our team won victories in Basketball in the preliminary games over the Seniors and the Juniors. Then came the great event on Thanksgiving Day to which the players as well as the rest of the class went with trembling hearts. In a close and very exciting struggle with the Seniors we won with one point. Later we played the game for the championship and much to the sorrow of the Sophomores defeated them.

"That night, the banquet was the finishing touch to our happiness when our captain received the cup and our team was made varsity.

"Under the leadership of our new officers—Lucy Martin Currie, president; Sara Efrid, vice-president; Elizabeth Allen, secretary; and Janet Lowe, treasurer, we resolved to acquire the Salem Spirit more and more, and ever to let the Black and Gold float high, so that Salem might never regret having welcomed the Class of '31."

"Did you do it, Grandmother?"

"Run to bed, Child, that is a story for another evening."

Organizations

Presidents' Forum

The Presidents' Forum is a valuable asset in the life of the College, providing a medium of exchange and discussion. It is composed of the presidents, or heads, of all college organizations, with the primary object of discussing and acting upon important questions and problems relative to the college as a whole.

The heads of the following organizations are members of the Presidents' Forum: President of Salem College, honorary member; Presidents of Student Government, President of Y. W. C. A., President of the Athletic Association, President of I. R. S., Under-graduate Representative, Editor of "Sights and Insights," Editor of "Salemite," President of History Club, President of Le Cercle Francais, President of Societas Scientiarum Salemensis, President of the Home Economics Club, President of the Pierrette Players, Presidents of the four classes, Fire Chief, President of Mathematics Club, and President of the MacDowell Club.

HE Student Self-Government Association has functioned at Salem since 1914. It has grown since its inauguration until its membership now includes the entire student body. Until last year only boarding students were members of the Association, but then, due to the increasing number of off-campus students and their importance in every phase of school life, these girls were given membership.

The purpose of the organization is to develop self-control and loyalty in the students, to instil in them the highest principles of honor, and to secure a united and harmonious student body through individual responsibility and co-operation. Honor and co-operation are the key words of the organization, and an earnest endeavor has been made to set this year's standards for the Association higher than have been attained previously.

There are two Student Councils, the On-Campus and the Off-Campus, in which the executive powers of the Association are vested. The On-Campus Council is composed of a president, two vice-presidents and four representatives from the Senior Class, a secretary and treasurer from the Junior Class, and three representatives each from the Junior, Sophomore and Freshman Classes. The House presidents are members of the council and the president of the Y. W. C. A. is an honorary member. The Off-Campus Council consists of a president and two vice-presidents from the Senior Class, a secretary and treasurer from the Junior Class, and two representatives from each of the four classes. These two councils consider their own particular problems independently, and together, in a joint council, discuss questions relating to the student body as a whole and act upon all serious problems referred to it by either of the councils.

I. R. S. means "I Represent Salem," and forms the slogan for one of the few organizations on the campus that includes every Salem girl. Salem has always maintained the very highest ideals and standards and seeks to instil them into her daughters. To represent Salem means to do so in appearance, conduct, moral and social usage, loyally upholding her highest principles.

It took Miss Stipe, Dean of Women, to realize that an important phase of its activity should be a "Social Forum" which would be the channel for teaching such extra curricula subjects as social etiquette, health, and profitable use of time. She has encouraged the presentation of attractive programs of social usages and has offered valuable aid in carrying out the fundamental purpose and ideals of I. R. S.

The I. R. S. board includes members of each of the four college classes who strive to live up to the ideals of the school and to foster that unmistakable characteristic of all true Salem daughters—Salem Spirit.

THE Y. W. C. A. is the only religious organization at Salem and has perhaps a larger field of service than any other campus organization. It strives to lead students to faith in God, through Jesus Christ; to lead them into membership and service in the Christian Church; to promote their growth in Christian faith and character, especially through the study of the Bible; and to influence them to devote themselves, in united efforts with all Christians, to the work of making the will of Christ effective in human society and to extend the Kingdom of God throughout the world.

The Y. W. C. A. wishes to develop all of its members in their spiritual, mental, and social life. It is with these aims in view that it carries out its activities. A Vesper service is held every Sunday night to which every girl in college is invited. At this time student and musical programs are presented or outside speakers address the organization. Every night, with the exception of Saturday and Sunday nights, evening watch is held in all of the buildings and on every floor in the Alice Clewell Memorial Building.

The mental life is developed in the various tasks which are to be done by the student body as a whole. The Social Service program is a very extensive one this year, and one in which many girls have the opportunity to serve.

The social activities are also quite varied. Besides meeting all of the new girls at the train on the first day of school, the Y. W. C. A. gives a "get acquainted" party to all of the girls in school on the first Friday after the opening of college.

The "Y" store is kept open every night, except Sunday, from 10:00 to 10:15 o'clock, and anyone who gets hungry may "come and buy and be filled."

During examination week, the "Y" serves tea to the student body every afternoon.

The Salem Y. W. C. A. has wonderful opportunities for service, and the Cabinet for the year '27-'28 is hoping that this will be the very best year that the Salem Y. W. C. A. has ever had.

The Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club is the oldest departmental club at Salem. Holding in mind the vital importance of home economics to the girl, it was organized and so it includes in its membership all students who are interested in home economics.

The club purposes to bring to its members the various phases of home economics that are a part of their lives even as they are living them day by day at Salem. Outside speakers, who are authorities on their subjects, are invited in to do this. Then, too, the club helps to improve the apartment that is called the Practice House. This is the place where the Seniors in the department serve an apprenticeship of six weeks in the actual running of a home.

Meetings are held every two weeks on Wednesday night. The club is a member of the State Association and also of the National Association of Home Economics Clubs.

History Club

KATHARINE TAYLOR President
 LUCILLE MCGOWAN Secretary and Treasurer
 CORDELIA SHANER Chairman of Program Committee

Although the History Club can have only five candles on its birthday cake this year, it is, nevertheless, a strong and growing organization which promises to become a leader some day in the club world of Salem. It was organized for the purpose of studying both past and present history, and many phases of national and international political and social life have been brought before the club either by students, or invited guests.

The membership of the club this year is limited to history "majors" and "minors," and to those especially interested in history. The program consists of lectures by eminent speakers, and of student debates and reports on subjects of national and world-wide interest. Visits to historical spots around Winston-Salem add pleasure and variety to the regular monthly meetings.

The History Club is an energetic, up-to-date organization which contributes materially to the social and intellectual life at Salem.

The Pierrette Players were organized three years ago for the purpose of both entertaining and instructing in the art of drama.

Each year they present publicly at least one three-act play and one "Pierrot-Pierrette" play. At their meetings they either enact one-act plays, or read concerning the business of acting and make-up. It is the earnest endeavor of the club to present modern plays that have universal appeal.

The membership is restricted to twenty-five members, consisting of twenty students and five faculty members. In view of the limited membership and the excellent work that the club has done in the past, it is considered an honor to be a "Pierrette." Try-outs for new or old students who wish to become members are held in October and February of each year.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

RUTH HELMICH, Chairman
PEARL MARTIN ELIZABETH CROUSE

The Societas Scientiarum Salemensis, since its organization in 1924, has proved itself to be one of the most esteemed departmental clubs at Salem. The general object of the society, as quoted from the opening sentence of the constitution, is "to unite all students of science in concerted action for the advancement of scientific knowledge, comprehensive scientific education, and true understanding of the sciences." Members are accepted into this society on the basis of their character, scholastic standing, and their pursuit of scientific studies. The active membership consists of twenty-four members from the three upper classes.

The meetings are held every other Friday. The programs consist of lectures by outside speakers, and talks and demonstrations by the members. During the year trips are made to points of scientific interest in and around Winston-Salem.

The MacDowell Club

DEAN H. A. SHIRLEY	President Ex-Officio
MISS KATHERINE B. SMITH	President
MISS HAZEL HORTON READ	Vice-President
MISS CAROLINE PRICE	Secretary
MISS KATHARINE TAYLOR	Treasurer

The MacDowell Club, organized by Dean Shirley in 1919, was named for the American composer, Edward MacDowell. It is one of many clubs operating for the same purpose in various parts of the United States. This club has as its purpose the advancement of the social and cultural life of the college.

Since its beginning, it has presented and sponsored programs of widely varied interest. Twice, once early in its history, and again last year, it presented Mrs. MacDowell to Salem audiences. On both occasions, Mrs. MacDowell gave delightful programs devoted to her husband's compositions. Less noteworthy programs, arranged by the members themselves, have consisted of one-act plays and scenes from famous novels, concerts, lectures, "movies," readings, and more or less impromptu entertainments of a very varied nature.

When the campaign for the college endowment was started this club pledged and paid $500.00. Last year it contributed $100.00 to the living endowment fund.

In 1922 the Club bought a moving picture machine. Since that time, it is natural that most of the programs should be movies. However, it still remains true to its original purpose of fostering an interest in things of a cultural nature, and each year devotes some evenings to programs of this kind.

The Club presents ten programs, which are spread over the whole college year. Their programs are open to the entire college and academy groups, though membership in the club is limited to the faculties, the college students and the Seniors in the academy.

The Mathematics Club was organized in 1925 by a group of students interested in the cultural and vocational aspects of mathematics. The enthusiasm of the members has made this a permanent organization, in order to put into effect those standards of the club which will produce an all-round development in the social and intellectual life of Salem.

The well-attended monthly meetings, which include interesting outside speakers as well as practical demonstrations of applied mathematics, portray the loyal Salem spirit.

Le Cercle Francais

LETITIA CURRIE President
 MARGARET STEVENSON Vice-President
 DOROTHY FRAZIER Secretary and Treasurer
 HELEN JOHNSON Pianist

Le Cercle Francais was organized several years ago for the purpose of developing fluency in speaking French, and of promoting a greater interest in, and familiarity with, French life, customs and literature.

Students majoring in the French language, under-graduates who have shown themselves proficient in the study of French, and professors in the Modern Language Department are eligible for membership in the club.

The regular meetings are held once each month on Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock in the Alice Clewell living room.

The programs of the meetings are varied and always interesting. Members respond to the roll with a French proverb or quotation from some French author. The members give, in French, reviews of the lives, works, attainments of French authors, or speak on various phases of French life, and literature. In addition to these, French games are played, French songs are sung, and from time to time short dramatizations are presented. Each member participates in the program at least once a year if not once a semester.

Le Cercle Francais has purchased and presented to the College for use in the Department of Modern Languages various maps of France and Spain. The club has placed reference books in the Modern Language office for the use of students in the department.

Last year the attendance of the club was a little more than ninety per cent, and this year we expect it even to be better.

The standards of Le Cercle Francais have been gradually raised and bettered through the gracious help and guidance of the Foreign Language professors and the co-operation of the members.

Fire Department

Fire Chief: LILLYAN NEWELL

We are glad to say that the Fire Department is one of the least used organizations at Salem. However, we realize its necessity, and we have an efficient department. There are captains in each building whose duty it is to oversee the students in case of fire or in a fire-drill. Each captain also calls the roll of the students in her particular care. In this way she knows whether or not students have remained in the building. To supplement this action, each captain has a lieutenant whose duty it is to remain in her allotted precinct until the last girl in her care is out of the building. She then goes to her captain and reports. There can be no possibility of a student being left in her room under this effective system.

Our equipment is well chosen. We have five extinguishers in convenient places in each building, and on the campus there are three fire-hydrants for use by the city fire department. However, we also have fire-hose which can be attached to the fire-hydrant. Not least is the effective system of fire alarms in each building.

All this could not be made useful were it not for the co-operation of the student body in respect to fire-drills. The students obey implicitly and willingly the rules for fire-drills. There has never been an instance in which a student remained in her room during a drill. Nevertheless, one drill cannot fix definitely in the minds of the students the necessary actions. Therefore, we propose to have many drills this year, both day and night. In addition to this, there are going to be unannounced drills which are the true test of the value of our system. Another aim is to perfect a drill for the emptying of class rooms during class hours. We hope at some future date to institute that function which we realize is extremely necessary.

Strong are thy walls, Oh, Salem,
 Thy virgin trees stand tall,
 And far athwart the sun-lit hills
 Their stately shadows fall.

Firm is thy faith, Oh, Salem,
 Thy future service sure
 The beauty of thy heritage
 Forever shall endure.

True is our love, Oh, Salem,
 Thy name we proudly own,
 The joy of comradeship is here,
 Thy spirit makes us one.

CHORUS

Then we sing of Salem ever
 As proudly her name we bear,
 Long may our praise re-echo,
 Far may our song ring clear.

It's Your School and My School

Tune: "Your Land and My Land"

It's your school and my school,
 How we hail her with pride!
 The school of our Southland,
 Whose worth has been tried.

She will live on forever,
 With her we'll break our faith, no never!
 Glory, glory to old Salem!
 We'll sing as we go marching on!

This season for Basketball was unusually successful. Everyone always exhibits a keen interest in Basketball, which is one of the major sports at Salem; but this year there was more enthusiasm than there has ever been. The teams were most evenly matched, and as a result the games were peppy and very close.

Training rules were observed only two weeks, but the teams were all in excellent condition, due to Miss Atkinson's skillful coaching.

It is hoped that the season next year will be even more successful than the past one, and with the Freshmen as possessors of the cup, the old players will have an incentive for hard work.

Volley ball is one of the many out-of-door sports for which keen interest is being shown. This game, for the past several years, has been played in the fall when it is too cold to play baseball or hockey, and when the air is just invigorating enough to have a game full of pep and action.

Until last year there had been only two teams, one from the Freshmen and one from the upper classes. Each class, however, was represented by its own team last year. The same plan is to be followed this year, and everything indicates that when the final games are played the teams will be well matched and the games will be close and exciting.

Although volley ball is young compared with other sports at Salem, it is growing by leaps and bounds. Here's to a bigger and better volley ball season this year!

Tennis is one of the oldest sports at Salem, and although it has changed somewhat from the game which our mothers in flowing skirts played, and has become more strenuous, it is more popular than ever. It is one of the most universal sports on the campus, for it does not require team work or team practice, but individual skill and concentration of interest. It is a game in which the beginner as well as the expert may participate at all times. Every year there is a spring tournament for the college championship, and much enthusiasm is displayed, each girl wishing to have the honor of having her name engraved on the tennis cup as college champion. This year we hope to have both singles and doubles tournaments, so that more interest will be shown than ever before.

Archery is practically a new sport at Salem. It was begun two years ago, but it is by no means the infant of the athletic activities. Archery now has its place among the Field Day events, although it is not considered a major sport. On this day representatives from each class try their luck at piercing the bulls-eye.

Last year a Senior was the winner of the contest, but this year there are many Dianas in the school. So it is very uncertain who will be the lucky girl.

The last track season was undoubtedly one of the most successful in the history of this sport at Salem. Much interest and enthusiasm was shown by the unusually large number that participated.

Field Day was held on May 21. At this time several college records were broken. They were hop-step-jump and baseball throw, by Mary Duncan McAnally; fifty-yard dash by Gladys English; hurdles by Elizabeth Ray Dewey; and running broad jump by Sara Bell. Field Day is marked as one of the most important days in the college calendar.

Last year several of the large firms of Winston-Salem were kind enough to donate seven plaques. On these will be engraved the name of the girls winning first place in each event.

This year we look forward with great eagerness to our next field day. We have a great task before us. Shall we make it one of Salem's most successful, interesting and enthusiastic days?

Swimming has been made a major sport this year, and Salem College is beginning to have a first-class swimming team. We regret that the pool is not yet covered, but we hope that by the end of the year it will have a roof. Then swimming will be made an "all year around sport." The rivalry among the four classes is always great, and each class strives to win the loving cup which is to be given at the end of the year.

Swimming meets are keen! There is not a single girl on the campus who is not anxious for her class team to win. Swimming is no longer thought of as a minor sport, but each year finds it playing a greater part in the athletic activities of the school. This year new and more numerous events have been added to the swimming meets, and they are interesting, displaying better talent.

On your mark! Get set! Let's go! Make swimming the sport at Salem!

In the spring the young girl's fancy seriously turns to thoughts of baseball. Every afternoon from four until five the baseball diamond is full of girls, all vying for the honor of becoming a second "Babe" Ruth or a second "Busky" Harris. Last year every girl was busy with Mr. Harry Long coaching them in the ethics of the game, and this year will be busier still, with Miss Atkinson on the sidelines.

Last year the Seniors were minus a team, but this year every class is going to have one, with plenty of subs waiting eagerly for a chance to get in the game.

Baseball is a fine sport and a good way of working off surplus energy and avoidupois. Everybody come out, get up a good appetite for the picnic supper that follows the game, and who knows but that some Salem girl may startle the world with her ability as a baseball player, even more so than Lou Gehrig?

Take an afternoon in chilly weather,
Get two teams of girls together,
Get some sticks and hard, white balls—
Now what have you got? What is it called? Hockey!
Take the teamwork of basketball,
Take the speed of soccer,
Take the invigoration of swimming,
And combine these qualities all—
What have you got? Why, Hockey!

Hockey at Salem ranks as one of the three major sports. This year it is our task to keep up this standard by getting out a team from each class. To the old girls, come out and improve your skill. To the new girls, come out and learn how to play the most fascinating game ever invented.

Hiking is a coming sport at Salem. It is a going sport, too, for that matter, because we always go somewhere interesting before we come home. Therefore, take it going and coming, hiking is a fine sport for everybody.

Everyone really ought to hike. It is not too strenuous for anybody, even those who are somewhat inclined to idleness; it is not too tame for the most vigorous; it blows the cobwebs out of the most intellectual brains; it puts hefty thoughts into the emptiest minds. No matter how you feel, it "does you good and helps you, too."

If you belong to any of the above groups, or if you are in a class all by yourself, come out and hike!

Memoirs

All Hail Ye—The Salem Court

All hail ye—the King of our Salem Court!
He's generous, he's fine, a pretty good old sort;
But, unless you obey him, Heaven
pity your fate!
For he believes in the adage "I am the State!"

The Keeper of our Palace, an energetic type,
Of course you can see that it must be Miss Stipe!
She spends all her time trying to take care of us,
Maybe some day she, too, will be
Dean Emeritus!

The Court Jester is here, don't you see?
But surely you're not puzzled with
"Who can it be?"
Who jests, and who jokes, at times he doth scoff—
Mercy, he must be the History prof!

The Court Musician, what a rhythmical man!
Music he could get even from a tin pan.
He rings everything except the bell—
It can be no other than Dean
Vardell!

Here the Court Lover, you all may behold;
Isn't he handsome and brave and bold?
Some say he has no idea of mating,
But Mr. Campbell is keeping several ladies-in-waiting!

There were scholars of old of wide renown,
But even today we have some in our town;
And though in a Greek book
they're hiding the face
You'll see that they are Dr. Willoughby and Miss Chase!

Louis' Wise Cracks for Salem Students

(With apologies to Aesop, Shakespeare, etc.)

Destroy the source of your F's or they will pile up to your ruin.
It is easy to despise a good player when you have just fumbled the ball.
A bird in the hand is bad table manners.
A word to the wise is an insult.
If wishes were ponies, all students would pass.
In onions there is strength.
Any excuse will not serve for a Thanksgiving cut.
She that is neither bright nor crazy is dumb.

Then and Now

When Louis Fourteenth ruled fair France,
The men wore silk and velvet pants;
And minced around in high-heeled shoes,
Like those the modern flappers use.

The lords were gallant, the ladies were gay,
And full of fun as we are today;
The Spirit of Laughter and Song and Dance
Was monarch supreme at the Court of France.

They had a merry time at Court,
But 'twas not like our modern sport,
For they played Blindman's Buff, that's all,
While Salemites play Basketball.

But we'd rather have our shingled hair
Than the wigs that they used to wear;
We'd rather have short skirts and not a crown
Than to wear their dresses which swept the ground.

And we have a better time at school
Than they had under Louis' rule.
Those days will never come back again,
But we'd rather live now than then.

The Coming of the Dean

"When will the Dean come back to us?"
Was a question asked of me,
"When will the Dean come back to us,
Come sailing o'er the sea?"

'Twas a question I could not answer,
'Twas quite beyond my power.
I wrote and asked the Dean himself,
That question of the hour.

"There are many things must happen
Ere I come home again,
Many questions to be settled,
Then I'll cross the raging main.

"Charlie must stop courting Miss Willis—
It upsets the dear girls so.
Roy Campbell must leave the ladies alone,
Though he's quite a Romeo.

"When Salem has grown to a thousand,
And Seniors can sing on the key,
When co-operation is forgotten,
Salem, I'll come back to thee."

Charlie's still courting Miss Willis—
It upsets the college girls.
Roy Campbell's still wooing the ladies,
They love his raven curls.

Salem hasn't grown to one thousand,
Seniors can't sing on the key,
I had to write and tell the Dean.
What would the answer be?

The poor man knew not what to do,
It really quite upset us.
He finally said that he'd come home,
If he could be Dean Emeritus.

A Tragedy

Time: One-thirtye—most any daye.

Place: Roome Seventeene—Mayne Hall. (The roome is silente and deserted).

Enter one downcaste Herald (whom ye may recogniz as Marye Miller Falkener) bearing huge trumpet. She blowes loude and longe. Nothing happens. She produces scrolle ande reades.

Herald: Hear ye! Hear ye! Atte one-thirtye of the klokke, ye Juniors are to holde in this roome their one hundred fiftye-first meetinge in an attempte to raise moneye to the amount of twain bits. Hear ye! Hear ye!

She blowes more laude blasts. Nothinge happens. She rereades scrolle ande begins to looke nervous. One-fortie—enter three merc shadowes of human beings. Theye are emaciated and toilworne. Theye dragge themselves slowly into the roome, one from sheer exhaustion fallinge to the floore.

First Junior: Ah!

Second Junior, seeing Herald: Ah, there you are!

Third Junior (stille on the floore) to Herald: Prithee speak quickly, Fayre Mistress, ere I die.

Herald: But ye other memberes? Fayre Marye Johnson?

First Junior: Loyalle member she is! To make moneye she is giving swimminge lessons in yon pool.

Herald: Ande Elizabeth Crouse?

Second Junior: Alas, she has turned into a sandwiche, ande is in danger of beinge consumed by Rose Fraziere, whose ravenous appetite is overcoming her.

Herald: But Lillyan Newell?

First Junior: Puore deare! She has lost her voice, ande is well nigh distracted tryinge to finde itte.

Herald: Ah, surely, Emilie Sargent?

Second Junior: Alas, she hanged herselfe ringinge the belle scarce one houre ago!

Herald (sadly): Then you three are the onlye ones who can attende. But you—you are so changed. Pray, who may ye be?

First Junior: I? I was once the baxom lassie, Margaret Stevenson, but, by the hair of me grandfather, I walked so muche and so faste to get to classe meetinges that now I weigh onlye thirtye poundes.

Herald: And you?

Second Junior: I am Elizabeth Roper, the victime of a sade accidente. I became so thyn, after peddlinge thousandes of cold drinks, that, upon openinge one bottle of Cocye Colee I felle in headlonge, and came near heinge drowned. Since then I have never regained my former goode health.

Herald: And you—where are you goinge?

Third Junior, who withe a supreme efforte has started crawlinge across the floore: Nay, nay, do notte hinder me. I see in yon corner a pennye.

She crawles near, ande her hande almoste graspes the coin when, overcome by wearinesse, she faintes away.

Herald (glancing at prostrate bodye): Who was she?

First Junior: 'Twas Dorothye Ragane.

Herald: 'Tis sade—but now to the businesse of the daye. Itte is withe manye regretes that I informe you thate, due to a lapse of memory on my parte, we hahve missed our chance. Yesterlaye was Commencemente Daye ande (bursting into tears) now we can notte give the Seniors their—weenie roast!

The two Juniors falle over deade.

(Curtaine)

Friday, May 27, 1928

What a day this has been! At last I have a chance to be alone and write. Even though today's work has been much less taxing than usual, I seem to have no time to myself. On the very eve of exams there was still my regular job of waking the entire floor, and, of course, I was almost late to breakfast again. I really believe that some of these lazy people would like for me to make their beds before they get up!

At breakfast this morning there were at least three people missing. I counted the whole crowd twice. It must have been those freshmen who have yet to learn that they must come to breakfast. I should have taken the matter up at council meeting. Why did I forget?

Straights, straights, straights! From breakfast till 2:45! And the few minutes left between classes and chapel had to be spent in taming the wild race which seems to have broken loose. Never have I seen such boisterousness—the Seniors as bad as Freshmen! If school were not to close soon we could not stand it.

This afternoon we saw the tennis match between Virginia Welch and Sara Bell, which would have been very interesting had it not been for those howling hyenas that Charlotte and I chaperoned to the courts. Finally, though, they quieted down when we agreed to take them over to the book store—I think they genuinely appreciated this because it is so hard to find Seniors willing to spend their time chaperoning.

The Council met this afternoon and decided, first of all, what to do with the Freshmen! Probation is to be suspended during the summer months only on the condition of perfect behavior of the class. Of course, no one knows of this so we are trying to keep it as a surprise to be announced during commencement. And then, Doris Walston was brought up and doubly restricted indefinitely for wearing mules to breakfast. Oh, I was never so humiliated! Imagine my own room-mate doing such a thing! I could not conceive of it if I had not reported her myself. I think I shall never get over the shock!

Early in the evening I helped Willie MacDonald with a theme, and later, had to preside over a house meeting, since Miss Stipe wished to talk to the girls about going away during the summer vacation. I think it's perfectly absurd for anyone to show such poor spirit as to leave when we have only three months. And special fire crackers have been ordered for the fourth!

There! the clock is striking twelve and my light is not yet out. I must give myself a call-down and finish this by moonlight. Unless the moon reports herself for staying up tonight, it will be up to me to do it.

To Our Mistress Mary

I heard long ago of a Mistress Mary,
And I'm told she was quite contrary;
She had a garden where she did grow
Silver bells and cockle-shells all in a row.

Not long ago I met a Mistress Mary,
But she—oh she was never contrary;
She was thoughtful and in her heart did grow
Not cockle-shells—seeds of kindness for friend and foe.

No longer now do I see Mistress Mary,
Who is beautiful and kind and merry;
Now she's not with us—yet not far away,
But we miss her more and more every day.

But even though she can not be here
To guide and brighten with her words of cheer,
Her seeds of kindness have not been in vain,
Tomorrow they'll bloom in our hearts again.

Little Greenie Freshman

(Apologirs to J. W. R.)

Little Greenie Freshman to the Library came one day,
She 'uz ignorant of its terrors which ud frighten her away.
If she'd only known the trouble 'at for her 'uz there in store
She ud ne'er have ventured near 'or have come up to the door.
An' all us other children sat behind our books and smiled,
'Cause we knew her time was comin' ere had passed a little while.
So we sat an' waited quietly to see what she 'uz about,
For we knew Miss McMillan ud

get her

Ef she

Didn't

Watch

Out!

She prised in, she switched aroun', a'poppin' chewin' gum,
She 'uz doomed to get her head knocked off before the hour 'uz done,
She stomped across the room, she slammed the books aroun',
An' we knew Miss McMillan 'uz angry 'cause her face 'uz full of frowns;
But little Greenie Freshman didn't see the storm was near,
An' began a conversation with a friend, "Oh listen here,
Do you know I heard from Charlie and he's comin' tonight about—"
An' we knew Miss McMillan ud

get her,

Cause she

Wasn't

Watchin'

Out!

"Say, you bloomin' Freshman, I don't like your sassy face—
Don't you know you can't be talking—say, just get on out o' this place!"
Poor little Greenie Freshman went away, eyes full of tears,
An' she never came back again without shaking from her fears.
An' little Greenie Freshman says to learn before too late,
Lest you, like many others, may suffer a terrible fate.
You'll have to be real careful, an' know what you're about,
'Cause Miss McMillan will get you

Ef you

Don't

Watch

Out!

Do You?

Do you dream of split infinitives
And participles dangling?
Do you worry with "who" and "whom"
Always "so" entangling?

Do you suffer from insomnia
All because of "sit" and "sat"?
Do you wonder which is proper,
A "g" or "k" for gnat?

Does the verb agree with subject?
Is it "to" or is it "too"?
Are these eternal questions
Which forever bother you?

Do you burn the midnight oil
Writing themes and compositions?
Do you spend your days and nights
Having "awful" premonitions?

Do you think you're going crazy?
Do you sometimes feel you're queer?
Do you see white ghosts and shadows,
And have terrible, nameless fears?

Do you struggle with your grammar,
Fearing to enrage "her"?
Well, don't bother, you're not crazy,
You're just an English Major!

A Requiem

Here lies the body of our Editor-in-Chief,
Her service was great, her life very brief;
How she pondered, she fretted and worried;
How she worked, she struggled, and hurried!

But the strife was too long, the battle too hard,
And ere it was done, she played her last card;
Consider her toil, praise her courage, at least,
And if the book's good, then her spirit's in peace.

Line a Day

I, Salem College, Propose to Write a Diary

Although I am rather old to begin writing diaries, I shall, during the year 1927-1928, record a "line a day." Even if I have celebrated my one hundred and fifty-fifth anniversary, I still feel young, having associated through all these years with school girls.

SEPTEMBER 14, 1927

Registration Day. I never saw so many bewildered Freshmen before. The Juniors helped them, though, by their "Big Sister" plan. All the students, both old and new, seem to be enthusiastic, and it looks to me as though this would be the best year of my life.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1927

The first day of school! Excitement and anticipation prevail about the campus. At ten o'clock the bell called the girls to the first chapel service. The Seniors, bustling with the importance and dignity of wearing cap and gown and of occupying seats of honor on the platform, sang, "Standing at the Portal of the Opening Year."

Dr. Rondthaler, presiding over the service, welcomed the new girls, as well as the alumnae who returned for the occasion. Dean Emeritus Shirley, to the joy of many Salem girls, again played the organ.

OCTOBER 20, 1927

The Science Department was at home tonight to members of Salem College Faculty and student body, and to friends of the College. Salem College Laboratory is one of the three laboratories in North Carolina to be recognized by the United States Bureau of Standards, and I'll tell you, my diary, that I am proud of the fact. The exhibit tonight was a revelation to me.

It so happens that refreshments were not served by means of yellow paper, as I expected (for knowledge is served by that means in Salem College Science courses); but flasks and beakers were used instead. I only hope that the heakers were sanitary and contained no staphylococci or—!

OCTOBER 23, 1927

Bishop Rondthaler has completed fifty years of active service to Salem congregation. Today his friends gathered at the Home Church at a Love Feast. Among those present were many Salem girls. The service was beautiful and many loving tributes were paid to "our dear Bishop."

OCTOBER 29, 1927

The Junior Halloween party brought fun and thrills galore. The recreation room forgot to look plain and sober for one night, and became transformed into an autumn festival with piled-up cornstalks, with colored leaves, and gleaming jack-o'-lanterns. A very unusual form of entertainment was provided: picture slides of "Ourselves As Others See Us," which brought screams of laughter and merriment, and "The Pirate's Voyage," which caused cold chills to creep up and down the traveler's back, where she felt "Bluebeard's" eyeball, and walked the gangplank. Of course, there was music, food, and dancing. The Junior party was voted quite a success.

SALEM NEWS AND NOTES

NOVEMBER 1, 1927

Tonight the Seniors held their Hat Burning ceremony on back campus. The graceful dances of the airy sprites and gay flowers added charm to a well-enacted play, which formed a preamble to the Senior procession with the Sophomore pages carrying caps and gowns. The Seniors danced around a bonfire, singing as they threw into the fire the emblems of each class year. Caps and gowns were then donned, and the ceremony closed with the singing of the "Alma Mater."

NOVEMBER 8, 1927

Something happened today that does not happen every year of my life. At 1:50 P.M., a troop of girls marched quietly and circumspectly in the direction of the Infirmary. Each girl held in one arm a chair, and in the other a notebook. To my astonishment, this small troop invaded the Infirmary, and what for? Not for a clinic, but for an English class! This unusual proceeding, I am told, was the result of a compromise between the English Department and Miss Heath.

NOVEMBER 9, 1927

The faculty met this evening in a called meeting. Omnes dei deaque nos adjuvet!

NOVEMBER 11, 1927

Armistice Day. The College flag flies today on the campus, and the service flag is displayed in Memorial Hall. The program at chapel this morning was patriotic. At twelve o'clock noon, every girl stood for one minute with head bowed and heart lifted to God in prayer, with thanksgiving for the blessings of peace, and with supplication that it might remain for another year.

NOVEMBER 12, 1927

At eleven o'clock, the entire student body gathers in Memorial Hall. Such a volley of announcements pours from the platform that I am not surprised at Dr. Rondthaler's being confused about the time and place of the events of the week.

The programs for Wednesday chapel are interesting and varied, including many prominent speakers. On the Wednesday before Thanksgiving, the Athletic Association nearly raises the roof, and frequently Mr. Vardell furnishes the amusement.

NOVEMBER 14, 1927

The Junior-Freshman wedding proved to be an outstanding event of the social activities at Salem. While the organ pealed, "Here Comes the Bride," Miss Ina Flapper, on the arm of her father, jazzed up the aisle to meet Mr. K. Keeter, Jr., at the altar where, after the bride-to-be had carefully powdered her nose, the two were joined in wedlock by a ridiculous interpretation of the marriage ceremony. The newly-weds marched out to the triumphant tune, "Yes, Sir, She's My Baby."

SALEM INSIGHTS AND

NOVEMBER 24, 1927

Thanksgiving Day! This day, to Salem girls, means more than eating turkey or even than going to church. It means Basketball Games and Banquet. Girls, alumnae, and friends gather on the sidelines to cheer the teams as they come out. The whistle blows, the game begins. Did teams ever play better? Did those on the sidelines ever cheer more heartily? The whistle blows for the last time. The game is over. Cheers and shouts arise for the winners, the Freshmen.

That evening everybody comes to the dining hall for the banquet in honor of the teams. Speeches, music, food! Telegrams from distant alumnae show how the memory of the Thanksgiving banquet remains permanent.

DECEMBER 1, 1927

Salem College has three innovations this year:

1. The Salem College String Quartet.
2. The Salem College Female Quartet.
3. The new "Alma Mater."

DECEMBER 8, 1927

Thursday always means Music Hour. The Advent organ music today was particularly beautiful.

Music Hour programs consist of lectures and recitals by noted musicians and of student recitals; and this year Dean Shirley has delightfully told of his pilgrimage of last summer to the principal musical shrines of Europe.

DECEMBER 11, 1927

The Christmas Vespers were held in the Library, where the scene of the Nativity was portrayed by the "putz," which have been handed down for generations in the Moravian families. Several beautiful Christmas numbers were rendered by the Seniors, and afterward the entire audience sang Christmas carols in the glow of the candle light. The Senior Christmas Vespers have become one of the traditions at Salem, and a tradition which no Salem girl can ever forget.

DECEMBER 14, 1927

Tonight the Seniors sang Christmas carols, according to a tradition of years. The Seniors assembled at the College and, carrying candles, marched to various houses in the neighborhood, where they sang carols and were rewarded with refreshments at each place.

JANUARY 6, 1928

The first chapel service of the new year was held. Chapel is always interesting. Beautiful organ music, played by Dean Shirley; inspiring hymns, prayer, and Bible reading. How could one better start the day?

JANUARY 20, 1928

We have a new "Alma Mater," and it is beautiful! The words were written by Miss Marion Blair and Miss A. P. Shaffner, and the music was composed by Dean Vardell. Today in chapel the sister classes contested in the singing of it, and the Senior-Sophomore group won.

JANUARY 25, 1928

The Seniors observed one of the oldest and most cherished of Salem's customs in the ceremony known as "Ivy and Tree Planting." The planting of the ivy and the tree is a symbol of devotion to the Alma Mater and a living remembrance of pleasant years spent in scholastic endeavors. The ceremony took place this year out-of-doors, in place of the regular Wednesday chapel.

JANUARY 26, 1928

Mid-term examinations began today. My, but I feel quiet and lonesome. The girls are all studying for once in their lives.

FEBRUARY 3, 1928

Founder's Day was observed today, beginning with special chapel exercises this morning. During the afternoon, Salem Historical Museum was opened to students and friends of the College. The trustees were the guests of the Senior Class at dinner tonight, after which the Alumnae Association met.

MAY 5, 1928

Of all the special occasions and festivities of Salem College, none is more joyfully anticipated than May Day. No custom has become a more firmly established tradition within recent years than May Day. It is the occasion for presenting an elaborate masque, over which the May Queen presides. It was this year an all-day event, beginning with chapel out of doors, and closing with exercises in Memorial Hall at night.

The May Court was composed of:

- | | |
|-----------------------------|----------------------|
| SARAH LEE KINCAID | May Queen |
| ELIZABETH SIFFERD | Maid of Honor |
| ELIZABETH DOWLING | MARY JOHNSON |
| CAM BOREN | MARGARET HAUSER |

| RAY ANDERSON | LUCILLE HASSEL |

loved them, and how sad it would be never to wear them again as Seniors at Salem. To the strains of the processional, the Juniors marched to the platform, where the Seniors were awaiting them. In short and fitting phrases the president of the Senior Class gave over her cap and gown to the president of the Class of '29. Then each Senior presented her cap and gown to a Junior. After a speech by Dr. Rondthaler, the Juniors marched off in their new dignity, ready to display it throughout the town.

JUNE 2, 1928

The Senior dinner tonight was faultless, and such food! The climax of the evening came when the prospective brides of the coming year ran around the table, but the names of these happy ones must, of course, remain a secret until some near date in the future. After this last event we dispersed happily, for we had resolved to save tears and sighs for actual parting.

JUNE 5, 1928

You have been sorely neglected during the last few days, my diary, but the time has been so full that I have been busy every minute. This has been the most beautiful Commencement ever, beginning Sunday morning with the baccalaureate sermon, Senior vespers Sunday night, Class Day Monday, the Concert and President's Reception Monday night, and today the final graduation exercises. And now all the girls have gone, and the campus is oh! so lonely. I think I'll have to take a much needed rest during the summer months and you, my diary, must rest also, until September, when we shall begin together a new college year.

I've been so busy recently that I have not had time to record all the events in my diary. As may be expected, I have forgotten the dates.

Four piano students have graduated this year. They are: Sarah Kincaid, Sara Bell, Susan Luckenbach, and Elizabeth Sifferd. Judging by their graduating recitals, I think they are excellent musicians.

The annual orchestra concert, directed by Miss Read, was unusually interesting. Salem College String Quartet is becoming quite popular.

Salem College may be proud of its School of Music.

JUNE 1, 1928

Today the Seniors gave to their successors their emblems of dignity and wisdom—the caps and gowns of '28. This ceremony was a painful one, for it was not until they relinquished their once despised articles that they realized how much they

EMANCIPATION FOR THE HOUSEWIFE!

The housewife is being emancipated from drudgery, heart-breaking fatigue, and discomfort through the application of electricity to the arduous duties of housekeeping, there being today a dependable, simple, and efficient electrical appliance for practically every household duty.

Few people, even among housewives themselves, have anything like a real conception of the revolution that is being wrought in the home by electricity. The use of electricity in the home has almost doubled during the past five years, conserving the strength, energy, and time of mothers and wives for the pleasanter and higher things of home life.
